Passage for the Month

If God Be For Us

What, then, shall we say in response to this? If God is for us, who can be against us? He who did not spare his own Son, but gave him up for us all - how will he not also, along with him, graciously give us all things? Who will bring any charge against those whom God has chosen? It is God who justifies. Who is he that condemns? Christ Jesus, who died - more than that, who was raised to life - is at the right hand of God and is also interceding for us. Who shall separate us from the love of Christ? Shall trouble or hardship or persecution or famine or nakedness or danger or sword? As it is written:

“For your sake we face death all day long; we are considered as sheep to be slaughtered.”

No, in all these things we are more than conquerors through him who loved us. For I am convinced that neither death nor life, neither angels nor demons, neither the present nor the future, nor any powers, neither height nor depth, nor anything else in all creation, will be able to separate us from the love of God that is in Christ Jesus our Lord.

The first phrase, “What, then, shall we say in the response to this?” seems to refer to the whole of Romans 1-8, not just the immediately preceding passage. To crystallise our thoughts, we are given five rhetorical questions, of which only the last is explicitly answered (though the answers to the other four are clearly implied.)

“If God is for us, who can be against us?” (v31)

The answer to this question is in two parts. First, consider how we would answer the question if it were couched without the proviso “If God is for us ...”. The fact is that there are many people and things against us - a culture hostile to Christianity, systematic persecution of Christians in many countries, our own indwelling sin, and death (that enemy that is defeated but not yet destroyed) - not to mention the devil himself.

But the second, and more important, part of the answer is apparent in the light of that “If God is for us” rider. Since this is the case, none of those things that would oppose us can do so successfully.

In effect, Paul is saying that it just doesn't matter who is against us. He doesn't care. If God is for us, what's the difference? Remember that he wrote these words from his perspective of having been repeatedly whipped, shipwrecked, and stoned and left for dead; if he counts all his enemies as unimportant, I think we can do the same!

Paul's five questions are not arbitrary: all of them are about the kind of God we believe in. We can re-take enormous comfort and security in knowing the answers to them.

If God is for us, who can be against us? No-one!

- Will he not graciously give us all things? Yes he will!
- Who will bring any charge against those whom God has chosen? No-one!
- Who is he that condemns? No-one!

Who shall separate us from the love of Christ? Absolutely no-one in heaven, in hell or on the earth!
